The Last Flower

Steve Smythe

Here's the story: in spring of 1979 my high school drama class was performing A Thurber Carnival, which was a set of sketches written in 1945 by James Thurber, with accompanying music. I was the pianist. One of the short plays, a monologue called The Last Flower, came with no music, so I composed this piece to accompany it. This score is a sketch of the original piece, which I modified night by night to match the action and timings.

©1979 Steve Smythe

18
mf
21
24
f
f 26
f
f 28
pp
f

31
pp 34
ff
37
mp
40
ff
p 44
f