

The Drowned Girl

Lyrics: Bertold Brecht, trans: John Willett

Kurt Weill
arr: Steve Hansen Smythe

$\text{♩} = 52$ p

Voice

Piano

simile Once she had drowned and star - ted her slow de - scent Down the 5 streams to where the great ri - vers broa - den Oh, the o - pal sky shone most mag - ni - fi - cent As 9 mp if it was ac - ting as her bo - dy's guar - dian. Wrack and duck - weed slow - ly in -

12 mp creased her weight By clas - ping her in their sli - my grip Through her limbs, the cold blood - ed

16 mf

fish - es played Crea - tures and plant life kept on, thus ob - struc - ting her last trip.

19 p

And the sky that same eve - ning grew dark as smoke And its

21 mp

stars through the night kept the bright - ness still soar - ing But it

23

quick - ly grew clear when dawn now broke To see that she got one fur - ther

26

f mp

mor - ning. Once her pal - lid trunk had rot - ted be - yond re - pair It

29

hap - pened quite slow - ly that she gent - ly slipped from God's thoughts

mp

31

First with her face, then her hands, right at the last with her hair Lea - ving those

f

33

corpse - choked ri - vers just one more corpse.

f pp